PFAC Steering Committee FAQs

Why is the PFAC creating a Steering Committee?
To strengthen the PFAC community, build connections among members, and support future leaders as they grow into leadership roles.

What is the Steering Committee?
A group of parent and caregiver leaders who help guide PFAC activities and strengthen the community across ImproveCareNow.

What does the Steering Committee do?
Members help shape priorities, support volunteers, build connections, and lead PFAC projects and initiatives.

Does it replace the PFAC?
No. The Steering Committee is part of the PFAC and helps support the broader PFAC community.

Who can apply?
Parents or caregivers whose child currently receives, or has received within the past two years, care at an ICN-affiliated center.

What is the time commitment?
Members serve a two-year term and commit approximately 4-6 hours per month.

How are Steering Committee members selected?
Parents and caregivers may apply themselves or be nominated by someone. Applications are reviewed by PFAC and ICN leaders based on experiences, interests, perspectives, and committee needs.

How else can someone get involved with the PFAC?
The PFAC offers many opportunities to participate, contribute, and connect. Visit the PFAC sign-up page to learn more.
