Palliative Care NSW Election Platform Response

A good death, free from pain and suffering is a community priority and palliative care can provide this in many cases of terminal illness.

It is vital that there is full access to palliative care services in my electorate and across the state and I am committed to working towards this and support the approach taken by Palliative Care New South Wales in its What Matters Most platform.

I have already pushed for expanded service and funding and will continue to do this if re-elected.

Yours sincerely
