Seder tells the stories of organized labor's struggles and celebrations through the Biblical story of the Israelites' struggle to free themselves from slavery under Pharaoh's harsh rule in ancient Egypt.

Kim Cordova and Scott Moss will be honored as local champions of the labor movement.

Coloradans for the Common Good is holding its annual Inter-faith Labor Seder, Sunday, March 29, at 6-9 p.m., at Rodef Shalom.

In its fifth year, the Labor

Cordova, president of UFCW Local 7, joined the union as a Safeway grocery bagger. She has been president since 2009 and represents over 20,000 workers in Colorado and Wyoming.

Kim Cordova

Moss is a law professor at CU Boulder. From 2019-2025 he was director of the Colorado Division of Labor Standards and Statistics, where he expanded labor rights enforcement.
