

Exceptionalism or Totalitarianism

We're in an economic war and the war is going to determine whether we continue down the path of exceptionalism making America that unique nation on earth; or sleepwalk down the path of totalitarianism and end up like Animal Farm with the elites running everything.

America was founded on the right principles, but those principles are under attack and being distorted.

This week Kevin Freeman launched a new book, According to Plan, that explains this difference. It has a powerful foreword from Dr. Ben Carson and the book explains the need to reintroduce patriotism to the American education system. How we can reintroduce respect for the flag and the love of the founding of America and telling the truth, not varnishing it, not whitewashing it.

ATTENTION: It is not too late, we can restore America, but it will require action and unity to get the truth out.

For this briefing we invited Tim Barton of WallBuilders into the Economic War Room® to point us to the historical documents you can see and reference to understand America's true history. Looking at the documents can tell us what really happened in American history and what makes us exceptional.

When American youth learn what WallBuilders teaches, they begin to understand how amazing our nation is and how we must protect her.

Your Mission: To understand and help restore an understanding of American Exceptionalism.

"The truth of America's founding should be more important than how we feel. The truth should shape how we feel." -Tim Barton

Ep. 6-205 (OSINT) Open-Sourced Intelligence Report. This briefing includes conversations with Kevin Freeman and Tim Barton

Timothy Barton is the President of WallBuilders, a national pro-family organization that presents America's forgotten history and heroes, with an emphasis on our religious, moral, and constitutional heritage. WallBuilders has been recognized from coast-to-coast for its work in education, history, law, and public policy, integrating the elements of Biblical faith and morality throughout all aspects of American life and culture.

Tim is an ordained minister and has worked in a variety of church staff positions, including as youth minister, worship leader, and assistant pastor. He now spends countless hours in WallBuilders' library of tens of thousands of original documents, researching the truth of America's founding and exposing the lies regarding our history that currently permeate our society. He consults with numerous state and federal legislators on policy and legislation and speaks to a variety of groups across the nation each year.

Tim's ability to tell the story of America's past, while helping audiences understand how that connects to the present and what steps should be taken for the future, has inspired audiences nationwide. Tim has been a guest on numerous national television and radio programs including The Ben Shapiro Show, the Glenn Beck Program, Economic War Room with Kevin Freeman, Louder with Crowder, TBN, Andrew Wommack Ministries, Believer's Voice of Victory, and many others.

"At WallBuilders, we spend time going through original documents. Because even though we might love an individual from history, they could be an incredible hero, if we find documents that reveal they're not as incredible of a hero as we thought, we have to be open to the fact that we need to be honest about who people were and what they did. And that's where history and the original documents can help reveal that." –Tim Barton

Lessons in History - The Equality Ball of 1792-1793

There is proof that equality was important even at America's founding. Think equality is just a progressive trend? It started with America's founding.

There is a document showing John Hancock shaking the hand Paul Cuffe, one of the wealthiest black men in America. John Hancock was the governor of Massachusetts at the time. (This is the same John Hancock that signed the Constitution)

Equality was a term in the 1790s and there were even equality events.

This lithograph is picture is from 1792-93 era, and they were hosting an Equality Ball in Massachusetts.

WARNING: The way history is being taught today, people are incorrectly learning that America is evil and racist.

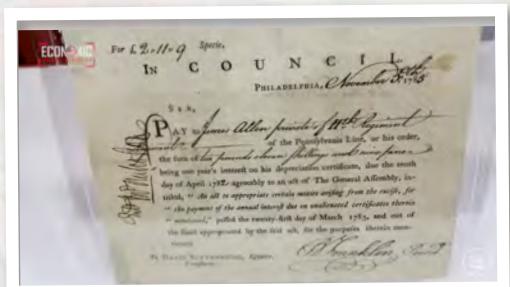

IMPORTANT: As we study American history today, we often hear that America was racist because of the agenda-driven 1619 Project and critical race theory (CRT) teaching.

The reality? America went a very different direction than most people know.

"If people went back and read the original draft of the Declaration of Independence, the largest grievance on the original draft of the Declaration was a grievance against the slave trade and arguing for the humanity of the slaves. Well, the king struck down a lot of early anti-slavery laws, which is one of the reasons people thought we should separate from the king. All that to say is when we do separate in 1776, every single northern colony began passing laws for the abolition of slavery. And so, at this point in Massachusetts, slavery has already been abolished, which is why it also makes sense that these are free blacks joining with free whites. And John Hancock is shaking the hand of the wealthiest black man in America. His name was Paul Cuffe. But what you do see is there's a very different mentality from a lot of history than we see." –Tim Barton

Next, we look at a signed document from Benjamin Franklin as Governor of Pennsylvania.

"What's significant, even in this conversation of equality, Benjamin Franklin was originally a slave owner that no historian considers racist. Why? Because not only does Franklin free his slaves, in 1787, he is at the Constitutional Convention. At the time of the Constitutional Convention, he's the president of the Pennsylvania Abolition Society to end Slavery in America. So, you have founding fathers who have gone a very different direction than the modern narrative." –Tim Barton

ATTENTION ALL OF AMERICA!

"We should be much more celebratory, we should be much prouder to be Americans, even about our founding fathers. If all of America knew who they were and what they did the negative narratives and divisiveness would go away."

At WallBuilders, we love American history, and we know America is a lot more special than most people realize today. And we love studying the original documents because it reveals the true history that even though the founding fathers weren't perfect, they're also not guilty of most of the sins they're being accused of today. We try to recover that history." –Tim Barton

1. America may not be perfect but look at what has really happened and where we are today.

"I think it's interesting you're showing 1790s Massachusetts where they were doing the opposite of being racist, they were promoting genuine equality." –Kevin Freeman

"I read Bill Russell's commentary from Massachusetts when he died. He was complaining about the racism that existed in Massachusetts in his lifetime.

We've seen a flip there because the southern states at the founding would decry equality, hating it; and the northern states embracing it. It's kind of flipped a little bit because a lot of people now say that the southern states are less racist in many ways than the northern states." –Kevin Freeman

Barton believes this is probably a recognition of Democrat strongholds and Republican strongholds, because of Republican values, the party of equality. Where you have more Republicans or in some cases where you have more Christianity, you probably have the better value system.

ALERT: Today it is often these Democrat strongholds that are the most racist cities in America. Look at the ones controlled by the Democrats.

2. Tim Barton shares his perspective and differences of growing up in the city or the country and how that potentially impacts societal perspectives.

You noted that in those areas where the Democrats dominate are atheistic. Antichrist attitudes take control in those cities that turn out to be the most racist.

As someone who grew up in the country, I grew up on a farm, relatively speaking, we traveled a lot with my dad going and speaking, but we always had horses and our grandparents had cows and we had sheep and there was dogs and cats. We grew up in the country.

- » You seldom find an atheist who grew up and lives in the country. It just doesn't happen.
- » One of the reasons the Apostle Paul wrote about in Romans, is that creation itself testifies to the fact there is a God. If you live in the country, you know there's a God. Now, you might not like him. You might not serve him. But, you know, there is a God.

In the city, if all you've ever seen are man-made things, if you've never seen the night sky and you haven't heard the night sky giving testimony to the fact there is a God, it's easier to be an atheist.

ATTENTION: We know there's only a couple of options for a nation. And as a nation, you either have a big God or you have a big government.

- » So, if there is no God, you must, by default, have a big government. And if there is no God, your value system also changes. And this is what you see in the largest cities that are Democrat controlled, and Democrat run.
- » It's not for the good of the people.
- » It doesn't benefit the individual and it doesn't help those in need.
- » Instead, the Democrats used slavery to oppress people and to build their own power structure.
- » Democrats are using things like welfare and government incentive programs to oppress people and to build their own power structure.
- » But generally speaking, you don't find those same mentalities where you find more rural, more conservative, more Christian, more Republican areas.
- » You don't find the same secular, godless or racist things that you do in these Democrat controlled cities.

3. Considering the perspective above, Kevin Freeman shares lessons from Animal Farm.

Let's compare the farm and how you sell people into slavery on the notion of "we'll give you this benefit or something else." George Orwell brought these out in the book Animal Farm.

- » The book starts with the idea that Farmer Jones is evil. We've got to remove him, and the pigs must take over for the good of all animals with equality.
- » Eventually, all animals are equal, but some are more equal than others.
- » When the pigs take over to guarantee equality, this means, "We're in charge (big government) and you're inferior." It is not serving the people. Anyone who disagrees is labeled and attacked.

CAUTION: The whole history of the eugenics movement, the whole Darwin idea, has led to things like Planned Parenthood and eliminating what they perceived as "inferior" races. Even though they are saying, "we're supporting you and helping you," they're really viewing human beings with some more superior and some more inferior based solely on skin color.

One other shocking thing – The German Nazi's thanked Planned Parenthood and Margaret Sanger for her work in Eugenics and the precedent that they established.

"You mentioned Planned Parenthood, Margaret Sanger. So, let me go there for a second. What is shocking about that, too, is there is a letter from a German official who worked for Hitler, who wrote to thank Margaret Sanger for her work in eugenics because it gave them the foundation for what they were hoping to accomplish in their German eugenics program. Literally, Hitler took Margaret Sanger's ideas and expanded, and really institutionalized those. Margaret Sanger was incredibly racist. And even the idea that Americans could be partially guilty for some of the evil that happened there, that's true. Planned Parenthood, Margaret Sanger, was far more evil than most people realize in what they were trying to accomplish." –Tim Barton

4. CRT an insult to human beings and it is racist!

We recently had Dr. Ben Carson in the Economic War Room and he noted:

- » Animals have different brain structures and so they just react to the very superficial characteristics.
- » On the other hand, human beings have very sophisticated brains, and we can study the content of one's character rather than the color of one's skin.

The key question is, why are we asking people in critical race theory to judge everyone solely based on the color of their skin and not the content of their character?

"It's a profound thought and question, which he's such a good thinker, but it's absolutely right. If you look back historically, there are some incredible heroes that today would be villains because they have the wrong color of skin. And there's people that we would celebrate that are villains because of the color of their skin. The color of the skin doesn't give you a good indication of the content of someone's character. Of course, he's referencing MLK's famous I Have a Dream speech, where the dream was that one day my daughters will live in a place where they're not judged by the skin, but by the content of their character, which is also like what the Bible says, like in Matthew 25, the sheep and the goats. They were divided not based on the color of their skin but based on how they treated other people."—Tim Barton

NOTE: The content of their character is how God divided them up. That is biblical, it's a practical, it's a Republican value idea that is based on biblical principles that today we are rejecting in society.

"It's an intellectual idea. There is a sophisticated brain that can accomplish that. So, you follow the science, the science of humanity and the science of our brains allows us to judge not by -- don't judge a book by its cover, don't judge a person by the color of their skin. But instead, there are distinctions we can make based on character." -Kevin Freeman

ATTENTION: It gets absurd when they divide us by skin color and then deny skin color by political leanings. Candidate Biden said, "If you don't vote for me, you ain't black." More recently the governor of New York told Republicans they weren't welcome in her state. Finally, President Biden made it clear that MAGA Republicans who supported Trump (some 74 million voters) were semi-fascist and implying they don't belong in the country. This is an Animal Farm purge. Creating unity and equality by eliminating opposition.

5. The importance of understanding context as we go through history.

There's good, there's evil. Some people act for the good of humanity and others act for the evil.

Because we are intelligent and can understand such things, there's also context that surrounds it because we can look back and ask, "they did what? That person is terrible, right?"

But the Context is Key

If you look back at someone who is in the medieval times and there are some knights and they kill people with the sword, they're considered evil. Well, wait a second. Maybe there's more context. Because there were wars where everybody had swords, and everybody was fighting. When you divorce people from context, which happens a lot these days, it makes them appear uniquely evil when the reality is different.

Look at Noah. The Bible says God chose him because he was a righteous man. Well, after the Ark lands on Mt. Ararat, he gets off, planted a vineyard, got drunk and passed out naked. The Bible says he was the most righteous one there was. But what it says in Genesis 6:9 is, "he was blameless in his generation," which doesn't say he was blameless. He was blameless in his generation. So, it's a comparative scale, right?

"It's not that he (Noah) was perfect, but he was just better than everybody else (who were more jacked up than he was). George Washington wasn't perfect, but he was arguably the most honorable world leader anywhere in that era because of what he was doing. Not that he's perfect, he had some major flaws, although again, major is relative. But he was the best leader, the most honorable leader in the world at that time. But if you judge him out of the context of his time, he looks less than he was." –Tim Barton

6. America is about We the People, it was not We the Elite.

The American experiment is an argument against the idea that you're born into this family, therefore, you should rule. Instead, it was the people.

America is about, "We the People rule" as opposed to the control of the few elite over the rest of us. And that's what the elite hate so much about America.

WARNING: The Elite do not like the fact that they can't have a power structure, which is of course why we see the move toward socialism and Marxism and communism. The idea of a zoo is where everybody's taken care of. But there's always a zookeeper who controls who gets what.

The socialists, the communist Marxists, of the elite know that it's not a bad structure, as long as you're the one in charge.

Now we're back to Animal Farm. All animals are equal. The pigs, however, deem themselves as more equal than others. And that is why we have these dynasty families that dominate politics. That's a little American elitism that we need to avoid.

7. American Exceptionalism

A look at how America is different and what made the founders want to do something different?

Barton explains that it goes back to this notion of the laws of nature. The founders believed God revealed truth in two ways:

1. Through creation.
2. Through His Word.

In both creation and God's Word, everything was individual responsibility.

The idea has been pushed that all the founding fathers were elites. People say, well, there were all these wealthy landowners.

Lessons In History - Our founders were not all wealthy landowners.

Look no further than Sam Adams to realize they weren't all rich and wealthy.

Barton explains:

- » Sam Adams was an incredible patriot, incredible voice, a leader of the Sons of Liberty.
- » But he was broke, and every business venture he ever tried failed.
- » When he was chosen to go to the Continental Congress, he was chosen because he was such a good communicator. He was so passionate and fiery about liberty, about truth, about biblical principles.
- » His own community was embarrassed of the way he looked because he only had one suit and it was ragged and he only had one pair of stockings that had holes.

They took up a collection for him. They bought him a new suit. They bought him five pair of stockings.

- » The community he lived in was even kind of poor. And so, he did not have his own horse or his own carriage. They didn't have horses to loan because they were using them on the farms.
- » They wrote John Adams, his cousin, and asked him if he would loan Sam a horse so Sam did not have to walk to the Continental Congress.

Sam Adams was judged on his capabilities, not on his birthright, his name, or the money that he had. He wasn't an elite.

Among the founding fathers, you have some who were attorneys, you have some who were teachers or professors, some who were pastors like a John Witherspoon and some that were farmers. Across the board this was not a wealthy group.

Even Jefferson was not wealthy and had a lot of debt. When he married his wife, he in today's dollars would have been several million dollars' worth of debt that he inherited back then; it was over $100,000 that he inherited. And certainly, if you even look at the founding fathers, sometimes people say, but they were so wealthy. We point out it's not just about who has money. It's what people do with their money.

"When you look at the founding fathers, you have guys like Robert Morris or guys like Haym Salomon. You have guys like Gilman and Thomas Nelson Jr. who literally used their money to fund their local state militias. Their wealth is what allowed the revolution to go on, because at that time, Congress didn't have the power to tax, so they couldn't even fund the military. So, the military was funded by individuals who took out loans and used their wealth. They invested in liberty." -Tim Barton

They invested in Liberty, and they were repaid with freedom, but many never got their money back.

8. Today, we are still fighting for Liberty with our money as we take on ESG.

In the Economic War Room® and the NSIC, we promote liberty, security, and values. We call it LSV as opposed to ESG. People should be investing in those things. We hope they'll get their money back too.

Investments in ESG and the Chinese Communist Party are being pushed by Wall Street. But are they good for America? They have risk as well.

Thomas Nelson, Jr. funded the militia in Virginia. The Founders pledged their lives, their fortunes, and sacred honors. And the founding fathers came from a variety of classes.

IMPORTANT:

The Declaration was the first governing document in the history of the world to make the claim that all men are created equal, because under the king there were lords and nobles. The King grants land, and the serfs and the peasants work for the lords and nobles. But the Founders said, "No, we're doing it different here." Because they understood God made us all. We're all created equal in God's image. And God doesn't have a hierarchy, power structure of people. It was a very uniquely American idea, rooted in biblical truth. And it was the first expression of equality by a government.

This is American exceptionalism. We're not claiming we're better, smarter, brighter, more talented than any other nation. We're just saying our system is an exception to the rule.

Congratulations, America! We did it differently than others have done, and it's turned out well.

"The best results of any nation where the average length of constitution in world history is 17 years. And every single September 17th on Constitution Day, we set a new world record. We're 230 plus years into ours." – Tim Barton

No other nation has been more stable, more secure, more prosperous, or freer.

Unfortunately, over the last several decades, we've seen struggles on lots of levels.

- » We must fight to preserve our freedom, our stability, our prosperity.
- » We must restore biblical principles.
- » Our founding fathers gave us a foundation for success. We must return to that foundation.

PAGE 11

9. The importance of Patriotism and Kevin Freeman's new book According to Plan.

Be sure to get the book and share copies.

- » It talks about the elite in the world today, the pigs of Animal Farm.
- » It prescribes as its solution, re-teaching America about how exceptional our nation is. Not that Americans are better. We are not better. "How can we be better than the rest of the world? We are the rest of the world."
- » Our Constitution, belief in liberty, economic freedom, and Judeo-Christian values are what make America exceptional.

"We must teach American exceptionalism the right way. That we have an exceptional system. It's founded on Judeo-Christian principles, founded on the thoughts of the Bible. And these were not evil men who founded this nation. They were good and decent men. Probably the exceptional men of their time." –Kevin Freeman

10. It's important to understand America's real history!

WallBuilders, is focused on presenting the forgotten history and heroes by just relearning who these people were.

"There were 56 guys who signed the Declaration. Most people can't even name five of the signers of the Declaration. So, if we don't even know who they were, how do we know they were all bad, evil people?"—Tim Barton

- » WallBuilders goes back and reintroduce who they were, telling their story.
- » Barton explains that as you understand history and our founders, even though they weren't perfect, you realize they were some of the most honorable, courageous, even godly individuals. They were amazing leaders in the world for what they did here in America.

Learn about America's Legacy and what we are really about.

At www.WallBuilders.com you can see many of the original documents. You can go in and read the original documents and relearn the stories. WallBuilders has books, podcasts, and all the social media content to help you better understand America's history.

You can learn how America became exceptional

- » The struggles that we've gone through.
- » Even some of the bad history, for example, our shameful history of Margaret Sanger and Planned Parenthood encouraging Nazi Germany.

"Historically, there are some very wicked, sinful, evil moments in America because like every nation, America is full of people and people at times do wicked, sinful, evil things. Where America is unique and exceptional is there were always God-fearing people who, by the principles of the Word of God, whenever evil reared its ugly head addressed the evil. The questions we should ask are, 'how did the atrocities stop in America?' and who led the opposition?' Without exception, it was the Christians following the principles of Bible that fought back. America has stopped evil sooner than almost any other nation in the world. Any atrocity you pick, why did it stop? It was the Christians who used the Word of God to fight back and put a stop to it." -Tim Barton

Why You Should Care?

- » America is exceptional, but there is a false narrative that is driving totalitarianism.
- » Elites are changing America's true history to benefit themselves.
- » All are equal, but some are more equal than others?
- » The way history is taught today, people are falsely seeing America as evil and racist.
- » Changing our history and pushing racism and division is part of a plan to sabotage America.
