The Kimberley is known the world over as one the last remaining regions yet to be impacted by industrialisation and urbanisation. It has intact landscapes that are unlike any others in the world. The coast is in the top 4% of most intact marine areas on the planet and the tropical savannah here is the least damaged. Despite this, significant challenges face us in ensuring the protection of the region.

About the organisation

Environs Kimberley (or EK) is the Kimberley’s peak environmental not-for-profit organisation. Established in 1996 to protect the Fitzroy River, we now work across the region to provide a strong voice in support of responsible development that is locally based and compatible with the qualities and values of this special part of the world.

Working in partnership with communities, landholders and land managers, especially Aboriginal traditional owners and their ranger groups, we work to tackle local challenges through scientific research, monitoring, community-based planning and management.

We advocate for environmental protection while working collaboratively on the ground tackling threats and increasing community capacity to deal with them.

Environs Kimberley embraces flexible, family-friendly workplace arrangements that allow our staff to have a healthy work-life balance. The Environs Kimberley community is welcoming and supportive and we value our happy and inclusive workplace culture.
