

‘Being a Dad in Scotland’ - volunteers wanted for a new History of Fatherhood.

I am a doctoral student from the University of Edinburgh. My research project is called ‘Working-class Fatherhood in West-Central Scotland, c. 1970-1995’, and aims to explore men’s experiences of being a father in Scotland since the 1970s. Did you become a dad between 1970 and 1990? If so, I would like to hear from you. I am interested in talking to you about your experiences of being a father, from when you first found out you were going to have a child, to your early memories of becoming a dad, and how fatherhood changed as your child(ren) got older.

For more information about the project, or to find out what taking part would involve, please do get in touch with me. I look forward to hearing from you.
