

Dear For Our Kids supporter,

Spring equinox in northern places is all about awakening, isn't it? It's a perfect time to notice changes in nature - some subtle, some dramatic - as rest turns to growth and revitalization.

As we venture out of hibernation, here's an idea for you and your family to share what you love about the amazing world opening up around us!

We're launching the first of four seasonal actions with this Spring Family Action, encouraging you to get outdoors, learn about and connect with the land you're on, art about it, and share your art with us. We'll put it all together as an art-from-the-heart presentation to elected officials who are making decisions right now about how to transition Canada away from our fossil-fuel dependency.

We know that transition has to happen, and fast. It's clear from abundant climate science research and data, and from what we see with our own eyes. We also know it will take a lot of ingenuity and commitment to making the transition fair for everyone.

By sharing what you cherish about the environment you live in, what sustains your life, and what you want to save, maybe we can inspire those with the authority to make those decisions to be brave and act with future generations in mind.

Everything you need to know about this action is here.

Want to find out more about a just transition and send feedback directly to the federal government? Here's how - online feedback is open until April 30.

And a reminder of Fridays for Future's Global Climate Strike this Friday, March 25.

Find an event near you or take it to the streets yourself. Youth haven't stopped their calls to action on climate justice, and we can't stop letting them know we're with them.

The next network welcome call is Tuesday, March 29th - join us to find out more about For Our Kids and how we support parents, grandparents, and guardians like you to find ways to take action.

As always, please reach out to us at hello@forourkids.ca with any comments, questions, or suggestions. We'd love to hear from you!

For Our Kids parents and teams are grateful to live, work, meet, and act in communities built on the territories of First Nations, Métis and Inuit peoples across Turtle Island. We recognize the ongoing harm and injustices of colonization and we commit to working toward safe, inclusive, just, equitable and healthy communities for all.
