Youth Homelessness Prevention Learning & Action Series for Philanthropy

Tuesday, February 1, 2022 | 2:00pm ET / 1:00pm CT / 12:00pm MT / 11:00am PT

Join other funders across various funding priorities for an interactive kickoff session focused on breaking down silos and inviting new partnerships for more intersectional support for youth homelessness prevention. This kickoff convening will provide an understanding of youth homelessness prevention and the importance of using an intersectional approach to this work. Participants will hear from Charles Rutheiser with the Annie E. Casey Foundation about their work efforts to rethink how they partner both internally and externally to tackle the intersections that most directly affect young people. Participants will have the opportunity to then dive into a breakout session with partners working in one of our five specific areas: Education, Health, Eviction Prevention for Youth People, and Family Engagement.
The Trust Youth Initiative: Direct Cash Transfer in New York City

The Trust Youth Initiative: Direct Cash Transfers to Address Young Adult Homelessness (young people age 18-24) involves the first study of the effectiveness of direct cash assistance with optional supportive services to help advance the goal of ending youth homelessness. The project will take place in New York City (NYC) and build actionable evidence. In the first phase, 30–40 young adults (ages 18–24) experiencing homelessness will receive $1,250 per month for up to 2 years. A large international evidence base shows that direct cash transfer programs improve outcomes for people in poverty and other marginalized situations, but they have never been specifically developed or evaluated for young people experiencing homelessness.

Co-designed by young adults with lived experience of homelessness alongside teams from Chapin Hall at the University of Chicago, and Point Source Youth. The Trust Youth Initiative was developed from an intensive research and multi-stakeholder design process. The program will work through a 4-tiered approach:

- Each youth participant can make several choices about payment frequency, payment options (e.g. Venmo, PayPal, direct deposit, debit card), as well as request a larger upfront payment to secure and/or maintain housing.
- Optional services that meet youth where they’re at will accompany the financial support. These services include coaching, peer support, connections to care, financial coaching, and housing navigation.
- Point Source Youth will oversee and support program design and implementation by local nonprofit(s), Chapin Hall will lead research and evaluation, and UpTogether will manage the cash transfers to participants through its online platform. Together, all three organizations will collaborate to develop evidence and infrastructure for a scalable policy solution to help end our nation’s youth homelessness crisis.
- The collaborative project team will work with youth and NYC partners to ensure that the program’s design and delivery reflect the needs and preferences of youth with lived experience of homelessness, especially Black, Indigenous, Latine, and LGBTQ youth.

The initiative is funded by the Mayor’s Fund to Advance New York City, the NYC Mayor’s Office for Economic Opportunity (for evaluation support), the Block-Leavitt Foundation, Melville Charitable Trust, Robin Hood Foundation, and the NYC Fund to End Youth & Family Homelessness, a funder collaborative.
that is hosted by FJC - A Foundation of Philanthropic Funds. It also involves collaboration with multiple agencies, including the Office of the Mayor, the Center for Innovation through Data Intelligence (CIDI), the Continuum of Care (CoC) and its Youth Action Board, the Department of Youth & Community Development (DYCD), and the Department of Social Services (DSS).
