

National Indigenous Carbon Forum

Program

Online Event www.icin.org.au

Date: 16-17 May 2023, 10:00am - 3:30pm ACST

Venue: ONLINE via Zoom

Aim

To provide a focus for discussions and knowledge sharing about the Indigenous carbon industry, carbon market updates, putting a spotlight on Indigenous rights and interests in carbon as well as explore emerging opportunities for Indigenous land and sea managers through new carbon accounting methods.

Summary

The National Indigenous Carbon Forum will now be held online. Attendance will be limited to First Nations people, representatives of Indigenous organisations and invited guests. It will support a safe space to talk about issues impacting the Indigenous carbon industry and how to enable greater participation of Indigenous groups in the carbon industry.

Theme:

Welcome

Thank you for joining us for what promises to be very important discussions of urgent issues facing the Indigenous carbon industry informed by policy-makers and scientists working in the carbon space. Although we were unable to make an in-person event happen due to a range of unforeseen events, we hope that the online format makes it easy for you to participate.

This year, we decided to make the online event exclusive to Indigenous groups and First Nations people. This is because we are aware that there are many sensitive issues to discuss, that deserve their own dedicated Indigenous space. We encourage you to participate as fully as possible in discussions and to connect with other Indigenous groups to share your experiences.

The carbon economy is a fast-moving, new space and with that comes both opportunities and risks for Traditional Owners. This forum will enable you to directly inform decision-makers directly of your experiences in the carbon industry, and to inform the upcoming Carbon Farming Forum hosted by the Carbon Market Institute on 22 May.

The forum will be asked to draft a Statement outlining your key messages which we can publish and present to the broader industry at the Carbon Market Institute.

We are grateful to our Sponsors and to the members of the Event Working Group for their critical support for the event, and to our 26 member organisations for their contributions.

Anna, Amy and Sherie

About ICIN

The Indigenous Carbon Industry Network (ICIN) is the national peak body representing the Indigenous carbon industry. The company is owned by its Full Members including 26 Indigenous organisations that produce carbon credits through their land management activities, caring for country.

The network provides a point of contact for policies impacting the Indigenous carbon industry, supports knowledge sharing through events, working groups and updates, and is committed to ensuring Indigenous groups right across Australia are well-positioned to understand and maximise the benefits from carbon projects for their country and community.

ICIN has published several key guides to the carbon industry targeted to Indigenous organisations, including the best practice guidelines, Seeking Free, Prior and Informed Consent from Indigenous Communities for Carbon Projects and Indigenous Carbon Projects Guide, both available to access for free on our website, www.icin.org.au

We also host the annual North Australia Savanna Fire Forum in partnership with Charles Darwin University. Further information can be found at www.savannafireforum.net

The ICIN is incorporated as a not-for-profit public company limited by guarantee and registered as a charity for the benefit of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people and people in rural/regional/remote communities.

We are Indigenous-owned and Indigenous-led, with a Board including seven Aboriginal leaders with experience in the carbon industry who are elected by our members, led by our Co-Chairs, Cissy Gore-Birch and Dean Yibarbuk.

Our Associate members are Indigenous organisations who do not own projects, but have an interest in carbon farming, including the Indigenous Land and Sea Corporation and Indigenous Desert Alliance.

We encourage any Indigenous organisations interested in joining the ICIN, to contact us via ceo@icin.org.au
