

Damian Darragh
Fund Partner
I Squared

Damian is a Fund Partner at I Squared, focused on the Energy Transition sector globally. Prior to his current role, Damian founded Conrad Energy, a Fund I and Fund II portfolio company of I Squared. Under Damian's leadership, Conrad Energy has grown to be the UK's largest flexible generation platform with a portfolio of over 1 gigawatt of gas generation, grid-connected battery and solar assets backed by a highly automated trading and operational platform.

Damian has over 30 years of private equity infrastructure investment experience, with a particular focus on renewable energy, throughout his career including setting up and sponsoring Independent Power Producers. Prior to Conrad Energy, Damian was a Managing Director at Terra Firma, where he led the investment activity in the sector. During that time, Damian built three leading renewable energy utility businesses, through organic and buy-and-build growth strategies: Infinis (which had an initial public offering as the UK's largest independent renewable energy business), EverPower (a leading U.S. onshore wind company) and RTR (an Italian solar business that was established through a series of deals with the grid operator, Terna).

In addition to being Chairman at Conrad Energy, Damian currently holds non-executive board positions at the Energia Group (an I Squared portfolio company), Lynher Energy and AEDL (a European toll road company).

Damian has a Sloan Fellowship MSc from London Business School and a Master's degree in Electronic Engineering Science (MEng) from the University of Manchester and L'Institut Supérieur D'Electronique du Nord in Lille, France.
