Bomb Appetit: Clearing the Table for Peace

Landmines don't belong near homes, schools, or dinner tables—but for many families around the world, that's still the reality. In former conflict zones, explosives remain hidden in the ground, turning everyday moments into moments of fear. The simple act of walking to a vegetable garden, letting children play outside, or sharing a meal becomes dangerous.

With Bomb App  tit, we're inviting you to take action through advocacy. Your donation supports Mines Action Canada's efforts to raise awareness, influence policy, and drive global attention toward mine action—including demining, risk education, and victim assistance. Whether it's $10 or $50, your contribution helps us push for change that makes communities safer, long term.

Let's make room for hope, not danger. Donate today and help serve something better.

Social Media Captions

1. Dinner should bring people together—not fear.
But in many communities, landmines are still buried near homes and fields.
Your donation helps clear the danger and bring safety back to the table.
