Vote Diane Sare Nov. 8 for Peace and Prosperity

Special to New Federalist
NEW YORK, Oct. 25—On Nov. 8, New York voters have an opportunity to deliver a forceful, “No!” to the genocidal agenda of the bankrupt billionaires of Davos, of the City of London and Wall Street elite, and one of their key American enablers, Sen. Chuck Schumer (D) of New York. Independent LaRouche candidate for U.S. Senate Diane Sare is focusing her campaign on two major issues: first, preventing a nuclear war between superpowers, by curtailing the military aid to the Nazi-infested government in Ukraine and demanding a negotiated settlement which respects the legitimate security concerns of all, and, second, reorganizing the world economy dominated by the bankrupt trans-Atlantic financial system, putting an end to hyper-inflation by dramatically increasing physical production both within the United States and world wide.

Contrary to the divisive mainstream media and idiotic hot-button questions that are posed to candidates at controlled forums, Senate candidate Sare believes that Americans could be united around a program to take thermonuclear war off the table while launching the greatest physical economic recovery the United States has ever seen.
As the calendar turns towards election day, Sare has insisted in her numerous appearances on public talk shows, at Schiller Institute conferences, and on social media, that the military conflict between Ukraine and Russia, in which tens of thousands of people have already perished, was completely avoidable “had western leaders responded in good faith to President Putin’s legitimate security concerns, including his objections to the seemingly endless expansion of NATO, which was relentless despite American promises made in 1990 that NATO would never expand east of the reunified Germany.

“Instead, President Putin’s ‘red lines’ were not only ignored, but deliberately violated, including leaving open the question whether Ukraine would be allowed to join NATO,” she said in an interview, “and allowing, or even encouraging, an escalation of the shelling of the Russian speaking civilian population in the Donbas, where over 14,000 people have been killed by the Ukrainian military since the U.S. State Department and British Intelligence-orchestrated coup in 2014.”

Candidate’s Voice Suppressed
For comments like those expressed above, Sare found herself placed on a “blacklist” issued by the Ukrainian Center for Countering Disinformation (CCD), along with Schiller Institute founder Helga Zepp-LaRouche, and many prominent international figures, including former UN weapons inspector and military analyst Scott Ritter and former State Senator and Colonel (ret.) Richard Black. Given the legacy of Nazi-collaborator Stepan Bandera, who is viewed as a national hero by the current Ukrainian regime, such blacklists are often “kill lists”, targeting individuals who speak in opposition to the western-approved narrative for elimination, as occurred with the Russian journalist Darya Dugina, who was assassinated by a car bomb in August.
Sare’s opponent Chuck Schumer, as Senate majority leader, funneled billions in arms and money to the Nazi-dominated Ukrainian government, including funds that went to the CCD to help produce and circulate the hitlist targeting

EDITORIAL The Significance of Nov. 8

by Diane Sare

The world is anxiously watching the November 8th midterm U.S. election for signs that thermonuclear Armageddon might still be avoided. I ask you to keep this in mind as you prepare to cast your vote. Despite the well-documented corruption of the process, voting is a sacred right of citizens in our constitutional republic, and it is our sacred duty to be well-informed and to participate. You have the opportunity in the U.S. Senate race in the state of New York to reject the madness of empowering the Nazi regime in Ukraine in order to destroy Russia. Both the Democratic incumbent, Charles Schumer, and his Republican opponent, Joe Pinion, share that identical view – carefully crafted by intelligence agencies – which puts all our lives and the future of the human race in danger. You can declare your support for a new system of peace through economic development by voting for me, LaRouche candidate Diane Sare, for U.S. Senate in the state of New York.
Recall Chuck Schumer’s revealing words to Rachel Maddow in his January 2017 interview on the topic of President-elect Trump’s stated intention to reorganize American intelligence agencies, and Trump’s repeated references to the 2003 U.S. invasion of Iraq – which led to the deaths of hundreds of thousands, including around 10,000 Americans, at a cost of over $1 trillion – as having been based on a lie about non-existent “weapons of mass destruction.” Schumer exposed his treasonous loyalties, calling Trump “stupid” because the agencies in question “have six ways from Sunday to get back at you.”

Those same intelligence agencies, in coordination with Hillary Clinton’s Democratic Party and the United Kingdom’s GCHQ, then proceeded to squander millions of dollars and precious hours of Congressional hearings on the Russiagate hoax, for which no evidence was ever presented, while American cities continued to crumble, and Americans died in record numbers from “deaths of despair”: drug overdoses, suicide, and stress-related illness.
I announced my candidacy as an independent candidate against Schumer, because it was clear that our nation was suffering from a lack of qualified and courageous leadership, and that my 30-plus years of collaboration with America’s greatest statesman and physical economist, the late Lyndon LaRouche, made me the most qualified individual to assume that role.
In this centennial anniversary year of LaRouche’s birth, it is worth reflecting on where our nation would be today, had these

Sare Campaign Is ‘Off Ramp’

NATO Pushes Nuclear War Over Ukraine

Special to New Federalist
NEW YORK, Oct. 26—Since April of this year, Diane Sare, an independent LaRouche candidate for the U.S. Senate, has campaigned to alert Americans to the looming danger of thermonuclear war. The Sare campaign has now ignited a series of citizen interventions targeting the Congress of the United States, intended to change, not only the shape of the November 2022 midterm elections, but the present “march of folly” toward the thermonuclear abyss.
Though Sare’s Democratic opponent, U.S. “Senator-for-life” Chuck Schumer, holds no public meetings at which he can be questioned by constituents, Sare was able to confront New York’s other senator, Kirsten Gillibrand, at a town meeting on Tuesday, October 24. Gillibrand responded to a question concerning the now-infamous “kill list” published by the Ukrainian Center for Countering Disinformation (CCD), a government agency of the National Security and Defense Council of Ukraine, which includes the names of many Americans, including Sare, that have been designated as “information terrorists.” Gillibrand was in the middle of “clarifying” that “the (kill) list... is not what you think it is. And so, I assure you that Americans are not being targeted by Ukrainians,” when Sare rose from the audience and informed everyone in the room that what had just been stated by Senator Gillibrand was untrue, that, indeed, the kill list did exist, and that she, a candidate for the United States Senate, was on it!

Sare is a target, not only of Ukraine, but also of the NATO “Anglosphere” war apparatus.

The war in Ukraine has grown hotter, as the Russians hit infrastructure targets and warn of a potential Ukrainian “dirty bomb.”

What is “global NATO’s” actual “military objective?” The threat of the collapse of hundreds of trillions of dollars worth of speculative financial instruments—for example, what the hapless war-monger Liz “prime minister for a day” Truss almost unleashed in Great Britain, resulting in her swift “democratic” removal at the insistence of the Bank Of England—is the true impulse-tendency behind war, not “defending democracy in Ukraine” or anywhere else. Russia, China, the BRICS (Brazil/Russia/India/China/South Africa)-Plus nations, and the 100-plus nations participating in the Belt and Road Initiative (BRI) are attempting to disengage from the most bloated, unpayable debt-structure in history, and this is seen by the Anglosphere as a “casus belli,” a cause for war. If maintaining this dying structure requires the use of thermonuclear weapons, so be it.

Central Bankers Prepare to Send System Over the Edge

Special to New Federalist
NEW YORK, Oct. 21—The decision by the U.S. Federal Reserve, the nation’s private central bank, to continue to increase interest rates in the face of inflation which now exceeds 10% in many areas, represented for the more sentient among bankers “a point of no return”—a decision to drive the bankrupt trans-Atlantic financial system over the edge, and into chaotic collapse. The European Central bank and the Bank of England echoed their support for the Fed’s disastrous decision to repeat the actions of the infamous Fed chairman Paul Volcker some 40 years ago, which sent rates soaring above 20% and ripped the economy apart, before political blow-back forced a change.

“We are over the edge already,” said a Wall Street financial source. “We are in Wily Coyote territory,” he said, referring to the cartoon character who famously runs at high speed over a cliff and keeps pumping with nothing but air under him, ultimately to plunge straight down. On what date the full force of the collapse will strike cannot be precisely determined, but few commentators and experts believe that it can be delayed past the new year.

This source and others pointed out that in 1982, the physical economy was in better shape to absorb these foolish actions, whereas no such margin exists today, and a chaotic collapse is really the only possible consequence.

Sare Campaign Staffers Rip Cover off Phony AOC

Two staff workers for the campaign of Diane Sare for U.S. Senate in New York exposed Democrat media star Rep. Alexandra Ocasio Cortez (AOC) as a hypocrite, a liar, and a coward, in a widely viewed exchange at a Bronx town hall on Oct. 12 (bit.ly/3W61tWQ). The exchange between AOC and Sare staffers Jose Vega and Kynan Thistlewaite has gone viral and has been seen by over 100 million viewers on various websites. She refused to answer questions about her support for the US-NATO proxy war against Russia in Ukraine, which now threatens to become a nuclear war. It has received major national coverage, including on Fox News, by Tucker Carlson, who says AOC is shown to be a total fraud. In a subsequent tweet, she claimed that she did not answer Vega because he was shouting over a deaf person who was asking a question; which claim has been exposed as a total lie. As Vega said in an interview, “Now the whole world knows that AOC is a war hawk, who is part of the drive towards nuclear confrontation and war with Russia. As they say, ‘case closed’ on that, and people should act accordingly.” (For more coverage, see article page 4.)

Schumer May Try to Sneak Pot Bill Through Lame Duck Session

Special to New Federalist
NEW YORK, Oct. 23—Washington’s chief pot pusher, Senate Majority Leader Chuck Schumer (D-NY), may try to sneak legislation through the “lame duck” Congressional session following the midterm elections which would commercialize marijuana and allow proceeds from pot sales to wash through the banking system legally (currently not allowed under federal law).
His fellow pusher, Sen. Cory Booker (D-NJ), leaked the strategy to the pro-marijuana website Marijuana Moment last week, stating that while the broad bill creating a marijuana industry that he authored with Schumer had little chance of making it through Congress, a more focused bill centering on decriminalization and allowing legal sellers of weed to put their proceeds into the banking system might just sneak through. He said that there was a “good chance” that this strategy would work.

Sources cited by Marijuana Moment and The Hill report that the strategy would involve tying decriminalization to an existing piece of banking reform legislation called the Safe Banking Act, which has support in the House, and about which Schumer recently assured its sponsor Rep. Ed Perlmutter (D-Colo), that he would find a way to get it done.
Biden: Pardon Pot Users
While Booker praised President Joe Biden for his recent announcement of plans to pardon all people convicted of federal marijuana possession and for his plans to organize a “a scientific study” that might lead to the Federal declassification of weed as a dangerous substance, both Booker and Schumer realize that the President is still against the core of their proposal, which would create a massive federally regulated pot industry. Privately, the senators have told colleagues that the study, which may take years, might wind up only lowering pot’s classification. This latter point is behind their intent to push through the evant issue.

Sources say that Schumer might try to tie the legislation to a massive defense appropriations bill, which must pass before the end of the year. But Schumer, facing intense opposition from the GOP and the White House, was forced to back off from a similar strategy last spring.
Schumer’s office refused to confirm or deny the published reports of the new, sneaky strategy, stating only that the Senator remains committed to thoroughgoing reform at the earliest possible date. Sources report that Schumer was annoyed with Booker for leaking the strategy.

Sare: Kick Out Schumer!
Diane Sare, the independent LaRouche candidate on the ballot challenging Schumer, said that behind this new push for Federal decriminalization, is “the desperate desire of ‘Pusher Chuck’s’ bosses in Wall Street to create a massive legal dope industry in this country, which will dwarf the illegal industry which already launders its proceeds through Wall Street’s banks. The multi-trillion-dollar dope industry, which my colleagues dubbed ‘Dope, Inc.’ some 50 years ago, has been a major prop for the bankrupt financial system. Now, as that system collapses, Schumer’s bosses want to keep people high and stupid as they try to put through a new fascist world order.”
“I urge people to stay vigilant and to mobilize so that none of these tricks will work,” said Sare. “You can go a long way in that direction by booting the drug pusher Schumer out of office on election day November 8th.”

NATO Pushes Nuclear War Over Ukraine

response by Scott Ritter, former Chief Weapons Inspector for the United Nations, to President Joe Biden’s recent comments on “the possibility of Russia using tactical nuclear weapons.” In an earlier interview with Redacted, Ritter said, “If NATO doesn’t back the hell

Nuclear war critic and former UN weapons inspector Scott Ritter off, we are one second away from a nuclear war. If NATO continues to pretend that this is some game designed to weaken Russia... Russia just changed the game. They said they are not playing this game anymore. The game has changed.” Since that interview, “the game” changed again, and for the worse. Russia’s defense minister Sergei Shoigu has informed his counterparts in France, Great Britain, and the United States that if Ukraine attempts the use of a “dirty bomb,” a conventional explosive device “tricked up” to spread radioactive material, Russia will consider such an event to be “nuclear terrorism” and will respond accordingly.

What Sare Knows
What candidate Sare knows, and most Americans do not, is that, as of 2002, U.S. military doctrine authorizes the use of thermonuclear weapons against other nations, whether they are nuclear or non-nuclear powers, without the United States having been attacked! This is called “preventive war.” Preventive war was declared a crime against humanity during the Nuremberg Trials at the end of World War Two. Preventive war, however, was what the U.S. carried out against the nation of Iraq in 2003. The Congressional Research Service Report, “U.S. Nuclear Weapons Policy: Considering ‘No First Use,’” revised in March of this year, states: “Since the end of the Cold War, the United States has modified its declaratory policy to reduce the apparent role of nuclear weapons in U.S. national security, but has not declared that it would not use them first.... In the 2010 Nuclear Posture Review Report, the Obama Administration stated that the United States “would only consider the use of nuclear weapons in extreme circumstances”... (but) the Administration was not prepared to state that the “sole purpose” of U.S. nuclear weapons was to deter nuclear attack because it could envision “a narrow range of contingencies where nuclear weapons might play a role in deterring conventional, chemical, or biological attacks.”

Col. Douglas Macgregor, Scott Ritter, Col. and former Virginia State Senator Richard Black and other military professionals have observed that there is an ominous sense of unreality about the impending danger of the world stumbling into thermonuclear war—launched by the United States. Regarding the recently announced deployment of the American 101st Airborne Division to Romania, its first European deployment since WW2, CBS News reported October 21 that “In all, about 4,700 soldiers from the 101st Airborne’s home base in Fort Campbell, Kentucky, have been deployed to reinforce NATO’s eastern flank. The commanders told CBS News repeatedly that they are always “ready to fight tonight,” and while they’re there to defend NATO territory, if the fighting escalates or there’s any attack on NATO, “they’re fully prepared to cross the border into Ukraine.”

How Stupid Are They?
Col. Macgregor commented: “They are supposedly working with Romanian forces. Again this looks like one wing, or one leg of “the coalition of the willing.” Then the rest of the division is up in Poland, which is several hundred miles north. And there are all sorts of rumors on the internet. People are saying, “Oh, they’re going to fly into Odessa, and set up a blocking position, to prevent the Russians from moving on Odessa... I find it hard to believe that we would be quite that stupid, because Odessa is very definitely on the menu for the Russians. It’s a Russian city, a Russian-speaking city. It’s never been Ukrainian. And they are going to retake it... And that’s probably where they would stop normally. But if this happens, I don’t think the outcome will be a positive one for the United States and its coalition of the willing. And then, of course, the question is, if we sustain heavy casualties, and we are seen as losing, are we then going to turn to nuclear weapons, because as I have said repeatedly on this thing, I have never seen any interest on the Russian side on the use of a nuclear weapon. I’ve seen nothing to indicate it. The statements that were made were always in response to us. Response to anyone who questioned whether the Russians would respond if they were attacked with a nuclear weapon. And they’ve made it very clear that they will.”

Future historians will hopefully exist to ask, “On what strange sea was this ship of fools cast adrift?” Today, the insane seems rational. Historian Barbara Tuchman posed the question in her book The March of Folly: From Troy to Vietnam: “A phenomenon noticeable throughout history regardless of place or period is the pursuit by governments of policies contrary to their own interests. Mankind, it seems, makes a poorer performance of government than almost any other human activity. Why do holders of high office so often act contrary to the way reason points and enlightened self-interest suggests? Why does intelligent mental process seem so often not to function?”

Sare is a keynote speaker at the October 27 conference convened by the Schiller Institute titled: “For World Peace, Stop The Danger of Nuclear War” (bit.ly/3NbpKXh). This assembly of “Current and Former Elected Officials of the World,” occurring in the midst of the 60th anniversary of the 1962 Cuban Missile Crisis, is an attempt to provide responsible leadership in a time of grave crisis, and to defy the presumption of a necessarily-catastrophic outcome to a half-century-plus of trans-Atlantic failure on the part of the “Western” so-called “inner elites.”

It may not work. But once the door to thermonuclear war is opened, it will never be closed. We are now at the door. Who will decide, as midnight looms, to stand in the way of those who would open it?

System Sent Over Edge

Street thug Sen. Chuck Schumer (D-NY) says there has been a decision by Wall Street and the City of London to pull the plug on the bankrupt system. “They want to trigger a chaotic collapse in order to impose their scheme of eliminating sovereign control by national governments over economic policy, and handing it over to globalist so-called ‘financial experts’ who will construct a new fascist world order. Billions of people will die in this transformation, and that is their intent—to rule over a much smaller world population.”

“For over 70 years,” Sare reported, “the political movement founded by the late economist and statesman Lyndon LaRouche has fought the fascists who control political hacks like Schumer. And we have succeeded in creating an alternative to their genocidal dictatorship as seen in the emergence of a new system, led primarily by China, Russia and India, which seeks to promote the general welfare of all people and to invest in making them prosperous and productive.”

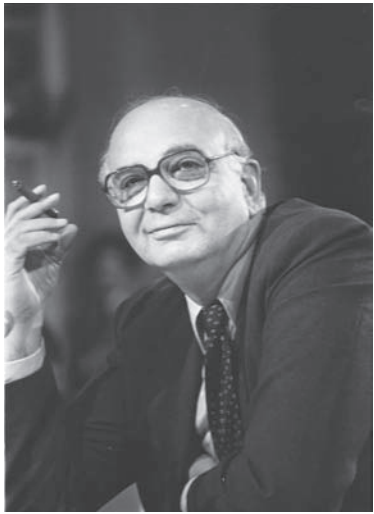

“These are the principles of what used to be known as the American System of Political Economy, which was developed to a refined physical science by Lyndon LaRouche.”

Hopelessly Bankrupt
“The current system is hopelessly bankrupt,” said Sare. “It has a debt overhang of such massive proportions that the numbers are almost beyond comprehension, when all categories of obligations, such as derivative bets, are considered. This debt cannot be paid, and no one should attempt to pay it. The bankers’ plan, which Schumer will help implement, is to loot you—from your bank and retirement accounts, your pension, the equity in your home and from your wallet through inflation and taxes. Instead of canceling the unpayable and worthless financial debt and paper, they intend to cancel you and your family.”

“The nations of the east, led by China, Russia and India, are not willing to play this game with their people,” Sare continued. “They, and the other nations that support their policies of growth and economic development, and who comprise a majority of the world’s population, have already refused the order of the London/Wall Street axis to limit growth. This is what is behind the drive for war and nuclear confrontation on the part of the NATO countries, led by the U.S. and the British.”

Sare Has the Solution
“I have a straightforward plan to deal with this, and if elected I promise to lead the fight on behalf of the people against these fascists,” said Sare. “First, end US funding and support for all wars, including the bloodbath in Ukraine, and seek a peaceful negotiated settlement that will rebuild that devastated nation. Second, put the existing financial and banking system through a government-supervised bankruptcy reorganization, to cancel worthless speculative debt. Third, conduct that reorganization under a new Glass-Steagall Act which will separate the functions of necessary and productive banking and investment from speculation and conduct a public Congressional investigation in the tradition of the famous Pecora hearings of the 1930s, when that great New Yorker, Ferdinand Pecora, took on the swindlers and abusers who had taken advantage of the weakness of financial regulation to create the crisis and put the guilty in jail. Fourth, authorize the issuance of some 10 trillion dollars’ worth of Federal credit to be distributed through a national bank or national infrastructure bank to fund great projects which will increase the productivity of the workforce, such as modern transportation and water management systems, hundreds of new nuclear (fission) power plants, and a crash program to develop thermonuclear fusion power within the next 10 years. We must rebuild and modernize all of our port cities, return to a fixed-exchange rate system of sovereign currencies, and collaborate with China’s Belt and Road Initiative (BRI) to take advantage of the enormous export opportunities for our reborn manufacturing economy.

“I would also propose a careful but substantial reduction in our defense budget: eliminating the slush fund for fancy military industrial wargames, but ensuring that our troops are well cared for, including funding and staffing VA facilities as needed, and prioritizing veterans for employment and housing opportunities,” said Sare.

“I represent the policies of Lyndon LaRouche, and am the only alternative to Chuck Schumer and his Wall Street bosses,” said Sare. “Anyone who opposes fascism should back me.”

same criminal intelligence agencies not been permitted to prevent him from becoming President of the United States. This is not to reminisce about “what might have been,” but to set our sights on proper objectives for the future development of our Republic and of mankind, just as Christopher Columbus looked to the North Star, not the figurehead on his ship, to navigate across the Atlantic.

We Must Colonize Mars

When President John F. Kennedy announced in 1962 that we were going to land a man on the moon and return him safely to earth within the decade, no one knew how abundantly humanity would be rewarded for that effort. Reflect upon all of the things that we now take for granted – from cell phones and microwaves to Velcro and food processing techniques – that came from our Apollo moon program. More importantly, setting our eyes on the stars liberated us from the littleness of our immediate circumstances, and reminded us that there is a vast universe full of mysteries to be comprehended by our God-given human creativity.

For these reasons, LaRouche asserted in the 1980s that a 40-year program to colonize Mars would result in an increased per capita income of ten times the purchasing power of the average prevailing income at that time. The kinds of new technologies required to sustain life on Mars would involve breakthroughs in thermonuclear fusion energy, optical biophysics, and development of new materials capable of withstanding or even adapting to extreme and unusual conditions.

Advances in these breakthrough technologies would require a rich collaboration of geniuses from every corner of the earth and would become a shared mission of humanity, without violating national sovereignty and the cultural integrity of each participating nation.

From my recent participation in a conference sponsored by the Schiller Institute “Build the New Paradigm, Defeat Green Fascism,” which was attended by about a hundred young people from the age of 18-35 (see article page 4), and from my recent experience on various university campuses in New York state, I am confident that we have a younger generation which is now willing to take on this bold mission.

Don’t Despair About Next Generation

While the pandemic-related school closings, and arbitrary bonus checks sent to unemployed young workers have had a horrible effect on the development of young people in this country (as has the evil stuff being taught when school is open), the human spirit is resilient, and we must not write off an entire generation as “lost.” I have seen the “help wanted” signs everywhere, and am aware of the frustration of business owners trying to find reliable younger help, but ask yourself, “what does the world look like to a twenty-year-old today?” What’s the cost of rent, as a percentage of the average salary? Can they afford health care? Will it all be in vain because we’re on the brink of nuclear war? How many family members and friends have died of drug overdose and suicide? For a young person, who recalls nothing of the pre-9/11 United States, it may appear that hard work doesn’t necessarily lead to a secure future.

We owe it to the younger generation, and to future generations, to make a stunning reversal of all of the policies which have led us into this abyss. Since the current Anglo-Dutch liberal financial system is disintegrating as we speak, all of us alive today are presented with an opportunity to establish a new system, based upon the true principles expressed in the founding document of our nation, the Constitution. If we seize this opportunity, of which this November 8th midterm election is a part, I am confident that a new generation is prepared to emerge, fully armed with wisdom, as Athena from the head of Zeus. I ask for your vote on November 8th. My opponents – both Schumer and Pinion – are creatures of the corrupt and evil establishment which rules the present. I am your best hope for a better future.

The Campaign Becomes A Movement

Whatever happens in the election, the fundamental goal of the Sare campaign is to achieve a revolutionary change in the direction of national policy away from a suicidal commitment to British imperial goals of zero growth (green energy), war, and bailing out the most corrupt minority of society, in favor of a national policy worthy of the intention expressed in the Preamble of the United States Constitution. Its effect must not be underestimated, nor abandoned.

The success of the Sare campaign will not be measured in votes, but by the creation of a durable movement of citizens, with the authority to hold accountable all those who call themselves “leaders” to the principle of the General Welfare.

This is what Sare has been building as she traverses the state, speaking and organizing her constituents for this fight. This process will intensify as we enter the final days of the electoral campaign, culminating in the Nov. 8 election. There people will be given a chance to vote for Diane Sare, the candidate for peace and prosperity, against the incumbent Senator from Wall Street, the thug Chuck Schumer and his Republican chosen walk-over, Joe Pinion, who may not even really live in New York State. You, the voters, earned that right, when more than 66,000 of you defied the rules intending to limit ballot access, by signing the nominating petition to place Diane on the ballot.

However, evidence has been presented to the candidate by NY Citizens Audit, that the State of New York is actually in no shape to hold a fair and transparent election. The discrepancies in the 2020 election between votes cast, as counted by county, versus those certified by Albany was 740,000 votes, approximately 9% of the number of votes cast, depending which total figure you use. According to NY Audit, 2020 election results in 11 of the 27 New York Congressional Districts should have been deemed uncertifiable because the discrepancy between the state’s figures and those of the county exceeded the margin of victory. (See the whole report at AuditNY.com; watch a Sare campaign interview with New York Citizens Audit’s Marly Hornik at bit.ly/3TGsGh7.)

This is why it is likely that it will be virtually impossible to tell what the actual election result is, especially if it is at all close. The fake media would like you to believe that we have honest elections in this country and in our state, and that talk of fraud makes you a conspiri-kook. But

New Yorkers, who remember the corrupt political machines that permeate our political landscape, know otherwise. It takes money and a large number of angry and courageous citizens to beat election fraud, and we may not be yet at that threshold.

But the enemies of our Constitutional Republic fail to understand something: They might erase votes, but they do not have the power to erase ideas, not if people are willing to fight for them. And they cannot erase a movement that is based upon ideas. In fact, the very effort to do so, leads to their undoing. Read carefully our feature (see page 3) on the power of Nemesis. Embrace the idea, and you will understand why, we will in the end defeat these bastards—with your help.

FEATURE

The Power of a Higher Law

Nemesis: Why the Good Must Inevitably Triumph Over Evil

Many reasonable people, including myself, are wondering where this insane drive toward thermonuclear annihilation ends. Is there no one in any of the institutions with the courage and authority to stand up and yell, “Stop, you fools!” at this five-seconds-to-midnight moment in which we find ourselves?

Especially after the changed dynamic following the referenda of the formerly Ukrainian oblasts which have now been welcomed back into Russia, the sabotage of the Nordstream pipelines, and the terror attack on the Kerch bridge, it is obvious that we are careening toward a very bad end, if the so-called “leaders” of the western nations do not change course.

This is where poetry supersedes politics. Lyndon LaRouche, whose centennial we celebrated in a Schiller Institute conference over Sept. 10-11, always insisted, in the tradition of Gottfried Wilhelm Leibniz, that God would never create a world where a crisis, caused by evil actions, could not be overcome by a greater good.

All great poets express this principle of justice, which was described by Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr, as “the arc of the moral universe”—and it seems often to appear, as if from the ether, but not as an accident, but because the “better angels” of our nature make it so.

Of course, we can’t sit back and wait “for something good to happen,” but must tune our thoughts and actions with the resonant principle of natural law and organize others to do likewise. It is impossible to judge whether we have done “enough,” until we arrive at the other side of this moment with a beautiful new paradigm for mankind. Failure is not an option.

—Diane Sare

The following exchange occurred during the first panel of the Schiller Institute Conference, “How To Inspire Humanity To Survive the Greatest Crisis in World History.” (Watch the conference at bit.ly/3fcI2TN.)

The participants in the dialogue are moderator Dennis Speed, Schiller Institute founder and chairwoman Helga Zepp-LaRouche; former CIA Russia/Soviet Union analyst Ray McGovern, co-founder of Veteran Intelligence Professionals for Sanity (VIPS); and Dr. Clifford Kiracofe, strategic analyst and author:

Dennis Speed: This is a particular thing that I’d like to have you discuss, because it’s rare that we have three people that can all discuss this sort of question. And it’s the following: I posed, in something I wrote in preparation for this conference, that the Schiller Institute and its interlocutors must act as the Nemesis of the presently prevailing civilizational direction of the trans-Atlantic world, in other words its dissolution. And that Nemesis is a different thing—it’s not street justice, it’s not retribution, merely—it’s a higher idea. It’s the notion, in part, I was contending, of a higher law which is outside of the so-called “rule of law” of tyrants, and they can never really can quite see how that these forces of their Nemesis are able to sort of forecast what they do, how they think, why what they are doing is destined to fail. And those forces characterized by the kind of folly and hubris that we’re seeing in the trans-Atlantic world are confronted by something that’s greater, and it’s not just, as I say, retribution.

I wanted to ask you to all discuss this idea, whether you agree or disagree with what I said. I want to start with you, Helga, and then go to Ray and Cliff.

Helga Zepp-LaRouche: When the Iraq War of 2003 started, we had a Schiller conference, and I started my speech by asking: “Do these fools not know there is such a thing as Nemesis? That you cannot start a war based on lies and think you can get away with it?” And some more things like that. (bit.ly/3gI2wMo.) And the reason was already clear that the war was based on complete lies that [Iraqi President] Saddam Hussein had weapons of mass destruction, that he had backed up al-Qaeda...

In any case, what is this Nemesis? It is a higher power. In European philosophy it was called “natural law.” In other cultures, it’s called cosmic power, Mandate of Heaven—there are many different terms—but in many cultures, you have such an idea that there is a higher lawfulness, and even if not every little sin is being punished, but you cannot violate this higher order over a long time, without it coming back and haunting you with a vengeance. And one of the reasons why the Schiller Institute is called “Schiller Institute” is because of, naturally, [the German poet and thinker] Friedrich Schiller and his outlook. Our cultural magazine in Germany is called Ibykus.

The Cranes of Ibykus

Now, those of you who are familiar with Schiller, even if you’re not German, may know his poem, “The Cranes of Ibykus,” (bit.ly/3gOVXrC) one of the most powerful poems I know of. It’s the story of a poet, Ibykus, who is killed: He is on his way to a poets’ competition, and since there is no one to help him, he says, “you cranes, who are flying over me being murdered, you should be my vengeance.” When all the poets are then meeting, including the two murderers, gathering in a big theater, the Erinyes come. The Erinyes are the goddesses of revenge, and Schiller makes something poetically absolutely incredible, because he changes the rhythm, and has the Erinyes walk in the center of the theater, and the language becomes so powerful, because the Erinyes evoke this higher power. At one point the poem goes “als ob die Gottheit nahe wär” (as if the divine were present). (bit.ly/3NcB7i0)

In come the cranes then, flying over the theater. One of the murderers turns to the other and exclaims, “Sieh da! Sieh da, Timotheus, die Kraniche des Ibykus!” (“See there! See there, Timotheus,/Behold the cranes of Ibykus!”) And then, the poets, who are all mourning the murder of their fellow poet Ibykus, cry out, “What’s with this name of the person who was just murdered? This must come from the murderers!” And so, they put them in front of a tribunal.

In an exchange of letters—I think with [the German poet] Goethe about the poem, Schiller writes, “Why do the murderers reveal themselves? Surely not because they have a bad conscience, because murderers don’t have a conscience; they’re just lowlifes and do what they do. But the presence of the divine, which was called forth by the Erinyes walking in the theater, established some higher power, and they could not control it.”

This was not prepared and I’m not doing justice to this incredible poem: I can only ask people who want to know about the Nemesis to look at this poem, and have it read out loud, and you will see. This is how Nemesis works. There is a higher power which intervenes, and criminal behavior of a human being has no power to avoid it.

This has been a big subject in Greek tragedy, where it has played a role all the time. But I think the concept of Nemesis—it doesn’t matter how you call it, whether “higher power,” or “divine power,” “natural law”—it does exist, and it is part of the built-in features of our universe, for the same reasons why Leibniz’s conception of “best of all possible worlds” is also an innate feature of our universe: that a great evil always tends to bring forth a bigger, very higher power of goodness.

So, there are many secrets about these matters, which I think are very relevant to the outcome of the present history.

Speed: OK. So Cliff, let’s go to you....

Dr. Clifford Kiracofe: I’ll pick up from what Helga was saying and, of course, the memory of Schiller and that particular poem—I might still have my grandmother’s copy of Schiller at the house here, in four volumes, in the old-fashioned German script.

The concept of Nemesis of course, comes to us paired with the ancient Greek concept of Hubris or arrogance, overbearingness. And Nemesis occurs as the antidote or result of this overreaching Hubris. I would just make a short comment that in ancient Greek Classical thought, we have the concept of Dike [δικη][pron. dīkee] in Greek. Dike represents the general concept of justice and fairness. Basically, Dike is justice and fairness; it’s a bit of a higher principle, say, than Nemesis that Helga was alluding to. What Nemesis wants to remind us of, is we don’t want to overreach in Hubris, because that’s undermining the general moral, ethical values of justice and fairness.

And I would just say that, if we look at the Feb. 4 Joint Statement between President Xi and President Putin, we see there, as well as in various BRICS communiqués and documents and other documents of various platforms, the very ideal of pushing toward a world with justice and fairness among nations.

(en.kremlin.ru/supplement/5770)

And so, in brief, I just would like us to think about continuing what Helga was saying, this concept of Nemesis, and then that higher level of Dike, or justice and fairness between nations.

Speed: OK, thanks. We have Ray back....

Ray McGovern: All right! Well, I’m refreshed to be reminded of my six years of Classical education. It’s nice to have Nemesis on your side! You don’t have to have read all of Euripides, or Sophocles or Aeschylus to realize that this was the downfall of all those tragic heroes! Hubris, Hubris brought Nemesis. Now, what’s Nemesis? Well, what’s Hubris?

Hubris is encapsulated by the notion that the United States, and by extension, the United States’ territories like Great Britain and other places, are “exceptional.” This is what [Secretary of State] Tony Blinken and [National Security Advisor] Jake Sullivan learned in their Ivy League schools: We are exceptional. Now, that cuts right across the grain of what Lyndon LaRouche said, in the beginning! If all men and all nations are created equal, how can it be that a nation can consider itself and want others to consider it, “exceptional”? Well, that’s the reality, here! And that, my friends, is the Hubris.

Now, I have so much enjoyed this conversation, and many others that we have been having under this banner of Friedrich Schiller, and I’m reminded in passing, that Beethoven stole from Friedrich Schiller, “Alle Menschen werden Brüder”! All men are becoming brothers and sisters: That’s important. That’s what we have to head to.

Now, underneath this discussion, I’m reminded of a fellow that I read a lot about. His name was [Vladimir I.] Lenin. Lenin wrote a book, saying, Что делать? What Is To Be Done?” That’s where I am: What is to be done?

Well, the first thing to be done is what we’re doing right now. The next thing is to spread that around, to all the people we know in whatever way that we can. But then, we have to act. Now, what’re we going to do? Well, there’s no great need for a grandiose plan right now. We can all act in our own peculiar circumstances. Back in the 1930s, that was possible early on, for Germans to do. What happened to the Social Democrats? Well, they caved into Hitler. So, we don’t want people to cave in....

I’ll just close with one little example: There’s a fellow named Anders Fogh Rasmussen. He was a big Danish personage, and he was made Secretary General of NATO [2009-2014]. He’s now on a committee to vet misinformation in the United States. What did he say three days before the war on Iraq? He said: “We know there are weapons of mass destruction in Iraq. It’s not that we think they’re in Iraq; we know they’re in Iraq!” Now, why’d he say that? Because the U.S. told him to say that. We have a lot of puppets in Europe right now, who say things because the U.S. told ‘em to say it. So there have to be a lot of Anders Fogh Rasmussens roaming around Europe and elsewhere, where you can pin them down and say, “now why did you say, ‘we know there are WMD (weapons of mass destruction) in Iraq’”? There weren’t any, of course, and we knew that full well.

This by way of saying this action, it seems to me, needs to be local, at least at first. Each of us has their own specific circumstances, in which to operate...

International Force Grows Against Threat of War, Fascism

Special to New Federalist
NEW YORK, Oct. 23—As the collapse of the trans-Atlantic financial system drives the world toward a thermonuclear nightmare and bankrupt western elites push fascist solutions, Schiller Institute founder Helga Zepp-LaRouche reports that there is a rising tide of opposition which must be consolidated into a movement of world citizens for peace and development.

That, as she told associates last week, is the purpose of a series of Schiller Institute conferences, the next of which will be held Oct. 27 (see schillerinstitute.com), featuring present and former political leaders and legislators from around the world. If we are to defeat the fascists and their ilk, said Mrs. Zepp LaRouche, “we must develop in people a different sense of patriotism, where the interests of mankind as a whole is placed before and above the interests of any group or nation, while we maintain the perfect sovereignty of nations against a fascist globalism.”

Speaking of the mass strike ferment breaking out in countries across the globe in protest of murderous sanction and austerity policies, as well as the war danger, she urged associates to recruit participants into the Oct. 27 conference, which comes as an initiative from Mexican and Latin American legislators who participated in a Schiller event last month. “They,” she said, “have clearly seen the need to expand that to the rest of the world, because what is at stake is the danger of the nuclear annihilation of the entire species, and that automatically makes every citizen on the planet a world citizen. And therefore, the slogan ‘World Citizens of all countries unite,’ is very appropriate.

“And we have the pedagogical problem,” she continued, “that we have to get all of these groups in motion to make the jump from just having their issue—cheaper gasoline, cheaper heating oil, better food prices—that’s good that they’re protesting, but they have to make the jump and actually understand the totality and that we will only succeed through a new paradigm out of this, and when they participate in such an event, or a series of such events to think as world citizens, and to think about a global solution, which can only be something like the international, new global security and development architecture, which takes into account the interests of every country: They have to learn to think this way or else, all their individual fights will not be sufficient.”

Speaking to Youth

She repeated this message to an Oct. 15 conference of youth activists, convened around taking on the issues of the war threat and “green fascism.” Organized and designed by the youth themselves, it featured a live event with over 100 attending in Manhattan, and more than 500 more attending online across the globe. It involved 26 speakers (some live, some online, and some by pre-recorded video) of all ages from seven nations (China, France, Germany, Haiti, South Africa, the U.S., and Yemen). The two panels of speakers featured lively discussion sessions, with questions from the room, and around the world, including from Peru and Uganda.

LaRouche independent candidate for U.S. Senate from New York, Diane Sare, delivered the second keynote, and we excerpt her remarks below. The full conference video, including a listing of all speakers, is available at bit.ly/3FstV5o.

‘The War Can Be Won’

Mrs. Zepp LaRouche had opened her keynote affirming her optimism that “the war can be won for a better future,” and offered the example of how two young Sare campaign staffers had ripped the media covering off Rep Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez (D-NY), exposing her as a warhawk (see article, this page).

She summed up the present situation as being “an early phase of a world revolution. If we can pull the world back from the brink of nuclear war, the world youth movement is playing a major role in building a new system. And this conference is a major part of that.

“It is morally unacceptable that billions of people lack water, food, power, and means of life, which amounts to conditions of ‘colonialism in new clothes,’” she said. “It is time we create an ‘international movement of world citizens’ to change this. We need a ‘one humanity first’ movement.”

Sare: Culture of the Good

U.S. Senatorial candidate Diane Sare, stating that she wanted to address arming ourselves spiritually, emotionally, and culturally for the fight we’re in, presented some history of the psychological subversion of Western society done by Bertrand Russell, his fellow-criminal Theodor Adorno, and others. Sare provoked the audience to think through the difference between shallow thinking and “soggy sentimentalism” versus real cultural depth, by having everyone together sing two well-known songs of both types. First, “Amazing Grace,” and secondly, the spiritual, “Were You There?”

“So, what’s the power in that music? [the Spirituals]” asked Sare. “Because what people did, what the Spirituals were about, was the power of the human spirit to transcend death. If your identity is located in that domain, then you will not be fearful. You won’t be cowardly; you won’t be a loser. You won’t look at other people and complain about how much worse off you have it than they do, and ‘don’t they know what real suffering is like?’”

‘Soggy Sentimentalism’

“... there’s a certain really soggy sentimentalism—maybe we’ll go to that last thing, I’ll just show it. You can think about why this is wrong, and then we’ll listen to the song. Here’s a typical local news story: ‘Homeless man buys stranded woman gas with last $20—here’s how she repaid him.’ This kind of stuff is all over social media. Everyone is supposed to get all choked up. Oh, this homeless man, who was a veteran but got addicted to drugs, and he’s out on the side of the road. This woman ran out of gas, and she was stranded, and he gave her his last $20. Then, she set up a GoFundMe, and raised $300,000 for him. He’s no longer homeless.

“The point is, why would you have such shallow emotions to allow yourself to be sucked into this?” Sare asked. “Like a tearjerker. When my sister and I would watch ‘Little House on the Prairie’ every night and cry, our father would say, Why are you watching these tearjerkers?”

“What does the story I told you about the homeless man and the stranded woman do for the good of mankind? What does it do to stop 1.5 billion people from dying of starvation? But we read and we feel so warm; such goodness just happened. That’s the same quality of emotion of the ‘Amazing Grace.’ It allows a population to do nothing when the supposedly representative government of that population is committing crimes against humanity all over the world, and against people within the United States.”

She concluded her talk with a video of former Metropolitan Opera singer Elvira Green performing “Were You There?” (bit.ly/3zeel39) at a concert from a few years ago sponsored by the Schiller Institute New York City Chorus, (founded by Sare in 2014).

Millions See Sare Staffers Expose AOC as Nuclear War Hawk

Special to New Federalist
NEW YORK, Oct. 25—By the time of this writing, millions of Americans have seen Democrat media star Rep. Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez (D-NY) exposed as an establishment promoter of nuclear war with Russia by two Sare for Senate campaign staffers, in now-viral video footage from an Oct. 12 Bronx town hall meeting. (QR code) AOC’s refusal to even discuss her support for the pro-Nazi government in Ukraine and her votes to send them weapons in the US-NATO proxy war against Russia have dismayed many of her supporters, and while it may not affect her reelection bid next month, her image has been permanently tarnished.

The intervention began with Sare staffer Kynan Thistlethwaite, interrupting the reading of an email question: “None of this matters if there is a nuclear war. You voted to send money and arms to the Ukraine.” As AOC tried to shout him down, he compared her warmongering to former Congresswoman Tulsi Gabbard, who recently quit the Democratic Party because they are “the war party.”

“You originally ran as an outsider,” Thistlethwaite continued, “yet you have been voting to start a nuclear war with Russia and China. Why are you playing with the lives of American citizens? You are playing with our lives.”

Nuclear War Kills Everyone

As AOC mumbled something about letting “your neighbors speak,” Sare staffer Jose Vega joined the fray: “There will be no neighbors if there is a nuclear bomb. You voted to mobilize and send money to the Ukrainian Nazis. You are a coward. You are ‘progressive socialist’? Where are you against the war? You have done nothing. Tulsi Gabbard has shown guts where you have shown cowardice!”

“I believed in you,” Vega continued, “and you became the very thing you originally fought against. That’s what you became. You are the establishment, and you are the reason why everyone will end up in a nuclear war unless you stand up right now and denounce the Democratic Party. Will you do that? Yes, or No?”

AOC then said that this was not the time or place to discuss this, but Vega refused to allow her to escape responsibility, telling her that there is no other matter that means as much as the question of nuclear war. “You know that” he told AOC. “We could all be in a nuclear war at any minute—and you continue to fund this.”

AOC mumbled something about lies to which Vega shot back: “You are the liar here. Nobody has held you accountable. Well, it is time for you to stand up and realize that what you have been saying is all lies. Let your conscience come through for once.”

At that point one of AOC’s crowd handlers moved to end the intervention. But the damage had long since been done, extending far beyond the sparse crowd at the Town Hall.

Spread Like Wildfire

The coverage of the event and video spread like wildfire, crashing through media barricades which had previously barred discussion of the nuclear war danger. Most telling was the coverage the next day in prime time on Fox News.

Jesse Watters of Fox News had Tulsi Gabbard on his prime-time show, opening the discussion with the video of Thistlethwaite and Vega’s intervention on AOC. Watters ridiculed the congresswoman’s skirting the issue of her commitment to war.

Watters then asked Gabbard to chime in. She responded saying: “I hope everyone was paying attention to what those two young men were saying, and paying attention to the pain and the anguish, and the fear and the concern that they were expressing to their representative in Congress. The fact that she was so dismissive of them really points to the bigger problem in Washington. One of the reasons that I left this Democratic Party of today is because they have become the party of war hawks. We are literally sitting on the precipice of nuclear disaster. You hear these young men saying, ‘nothing else matters if we are all destroyed in a nuclear war,’ that President Biden and the Democratic leaders in Congress have led us into. And they are completely failing in their responsibility, the president’s foremost responsibility, to keep us safe, to keep us free.”

Watters then asked her if there were any in Congress on the left who were opposing the war. She answered, “no, not a single one.... These people are right. Where are the so-called progressives? Where are the peace champions, the AOCs, the Bernies, all the people who claim to be representing this movement? They’re absolutely silent, and they are the ones leading us into nuclear war.”

Fox media star Tucker Carlson in his prime time show, gave an unusually strong statement on the issue of war and the absence of rational opposition to it in the U.S. He launched a full assault on AOC as a patchwork of media concoctions, ushered in as a loyal establishment boot-licker.

War Danger Real

Carlson then showed Thistlethwaite and Vega’s intervention on AOC. Moving on, he said that it had quickly become clear what the “Ukraine-Russia” conflict actually was: a proxy war of NATO against Russia, to destroy Russia. He tore into AOC as a fake and a fraud, pretending to be for the “working class” while her real constituency was NBC News and the establishment. He repeatedly referred back to the young staffers in the intervention—“these are real progressives,” he said, while calling AOC a neocon and a fraud.

In the days since, AOC and her handlers have tried to spin what happened. She issued a tweet which claimed that she had been attacked because she opposed Putin’s invasion of Ukraine, an outright lie, when checked against the content of the Sare staffers’ intervention. She also meekly claimed that she did not answer the two because they were rude. Vega reported that they timed their intervention so as to not interfere with any person who might have spoken from the sparse crowd.

Flip-Flopers

In the wake of the massive publicity following the intervention, 30 members of the Progressive Caucus released a letter, explicitly not recommending any change in sending funds to Ukraine, but asking that this funding be tied to efforts to avoid escalation and come to a negotiated resolution.

Vote Diane Sare Nov. 8 for Peace and Prosperity

signed a nominating petition to place Sare’s name on the ballot.

Furthermore, after obtaining the questionnaires used in these polls, it was discovered that not one of them gave the voter the option to express support for Diane Sare by name, obviously making it impossible to achieve anything over 0%.

On Oct. 18, both military analyst Scott Ritter and Diane Sare participated in an interview on Albany activist Cynthia Pooler’s “Issues that Matter” program, dedicated to the topic of the exclusion of Sare from the debate (bit.ly/3TER1Ed). Stated Ritter, “Diane, I’m not a political person, and I can’t sit here and say, ‘I endorse Diane Sare for Senate.’ I can’t do that. I wouldn’t endorse anybody for senate. But I’ll tell you what, I endorse your presence on the stage. I endorse your message. I endorse the fact that you alone seem to understand what’s important to this world, and that is having a future for our children, for our grandchildren, and their children and generations to follow, in the future that’ll be denied to everybody, if we have a nuclear conflict. I want you on that (debate) stage, Diane. I want you speaking out on behalf of the people of New York, and it’s just a darn shame that they’re silencing you in this matter.”

Sare Will Not Be Silenced

Sare does not intend to be silenced as she criss-crosses the State of New York addressing the voters. She is participating in dozens of candidate forums, as well as interviews with local, national, and international press. On Oct. 20, she was interviewed by radio personality Celeste Saenz, the

“This flip-flopping by members of Congress shows just how intense the war drive is, and who is actually behind placing my name on a Ukrainian ‘kill list’ – intelligence and financial interests from the U.S. and UK.” said candidate Sare. “You see that these gutless so-called ‘progressive’ representatives are prepared to plunge the world into thermonuclear war just to keep their funders happy. That is the issue.”

Azov Nazis March Through Congress

Members and leaders of the Nazi Azov Battalion meet with a fawning Rep. Adam Schiff (D-Calif) in Congress.

(R-Calif).

It is not clear whether Azov people met with Sen. Chuck Schumer (D-NY), who has pushed through billions of dollars for weapons and other support for the pro-Nazi government in Kiev. His office would only say that the Senator held no public meetings with Azov. Sources report that the Azov leadership has received assurances that Schumer will quietly work to remove the ban, which in part was put in place thanks to the work of former Staten Island Rep. Max Rose (D-NY).

Sare: Azov Defiles Congress

“It is a disgusting humiliation to the United States that these Nazi Azov members defiled our Congress with their presence,” said Diane Sare, independent LaRouche candidate for U.S. Senate from New York. “It is even more troubling but not surprising that these butchers were hailed as heroes by many of our Congressional leaders, who are happy to send weapons to Ukraine for our proxy war against Russia. This support must stop now, for the Nazis in the Ukraine and for their war. There must be a negotiated peace, which respects the security concerns of both Russia and Ukraine.”

The Azov leaders reported that they made tens of thousands of dollars in sales of their Nazi-like badges here. It’s not known if any were purchased by Chuck Schumer.

Diane Sare, for those of you who don’t know her, for any of our audience up in New York, she is a very, very, highly intelligent, very appealing candidate in every respect. She is a dramatic contrast with the sleazy, slippery money-dealing war-mongering politicians that run the State of New York right now.

head of the Mexican Press Club (bit.ly/3DzepwZ). Sare has also appeared on programs in Italy, the U.K., Algeria, and France.

In each appearance Sare makes the same point: “The impending blow out of the trans-Atlantic monetary system is the driver of the threat of nuclear world war. The only way out is for the leadership of the United States to cease its ‘special relationship’ with the British Monarchy and all that entails, and to adopt the policies outlined by the American statesman Lyndon LaRouche: put the system through bankruptcy reorganization, establish a system of fixed-exchange rates among national currencies, which would require collaboration with China and Russia, and invest in those activities which increase the power of the individual over nature, like development of fusion energy, building advanced transportation infrastructure, doubling world food production, etc. If you would like to secure a future for yourself and your great-great-grandchildren, vote for me, the LaRouche candidate Diane Sare, on November 8.”
