Introducing the South Shore Footpath Project Blog

Take a look at a vibrant new blog dedicated to the South Shore Footpath Project, a visionary effort inspired by the Bruce Trail to create a public walking route through Prince Edward County's ecologically rich South Shore. This new blog offers a window into the project's progress, discoveries from nature walks, and insights into the area's biodiversity. From native orchids to nesting Indigo Buntings, each post invites readers to explore and appreciate the natural wonders of this unique landscape. Dive into the latest updates and stories on the South Shore Footpath Project Blog.

Monarch Day Brings Magic to Delhi Park!

On July 26, South Shore Joint Initiative partnered with The Department of Illumination to host a vibrant and enriching community celebration at Delhi Park.

The event was a joyful tribute to Monarch butterflies, blending education, art, and nature in a way that delighted attendees of all ages.

 Cheryl Chapman, Cheryl Anderson, and summer student Emily Scott were on hand to share their deep knowledge and enthusiasm for Monarchs, inspiring curiosity and appreciation for these remarkable pollinators.

 Be sure to check out photos from the day and read more coverage in County Live and The Times.
