- The European Union Agency for Fundamental Rights (FRA) is launching a major survey across Europe on 9 May designed to investigate how Jews feel about antisemitism. The FRA is eager to hear about the thoughts and experiences of people who live in the UK, consider themselves to be Jewish and are aged 16 and over.
- The FRA will use the data to enable the European Union to develop its policies on combating antisemitism in the future, and will be encouraging national governments and Jewish communities to do likewise. This is a very important exercise, and it is vital that as many Jews as possible take part. We rarely have an opportunity to genuinely help tackle antisemitism – completing this survey is one small way you can have your say.
