

After 6 years
of Liberal cuts
and inaction,
our aged care
system is at breaking point.

After 6 years
of Liberal cuts
and inaction,
our aged care
system is at
breaking point.

AGED CARE IS IN CRISIS

Finally, after sustained community pressure, the Liberal government has caved in and launched a royal commission into aged care.

But we won't have a final report and recommendations until April next year. Our elderly parents and grandparents simply can't wait that long for action.

Right now, there are no rules to ensure there are enough nurses to look after our loved ones in residential care. Residents are at risk, and aren't receiving the care they deserve.

Without ratios, aged care workers are overworked and unable to provide the quality and amount of care needed.

Our parents, grandparents and loved ones who can no longer live at home deserve safe, quality care and support. Unfortunately, we can't trust the Morrison Government to make sure that happens.

This election, don't reward years of cuts and inaction on the aged care crisis. Put the Liberals last.

AGED CARE IS IN CRISIS

Finally, after sustained community pressure, the Liberal government has caved in and launched a royal commission into aged care.

But we won't have a final report and recommendations until April next year. Our elderly parents and grandparents simply can't wait that long for action.

Right now, there are no rules to ensure there are enough nurses to look after our loved ones in residential care. Residents are at risk, and aren't receiving the care they deserve.

Without ratios, aged care workers are overworked and unable to provide the quality and amount of care needed.

Our parents, grandparents and loved ones who can no longer live at home deserve safe, quality care and support. Unfortunately, we can't trust the Morrison Government to make sure that happens.

This election, don't reward years of cuts and inaction on the aged care crisis. Put the Liberals last.

